Milan Population Distribution, 2010

Source: U.S. Census Bureau, 2010 Decennial Census

The population distribution for Milan is different from many communities in the Region because a higher percentage of the population is in the younger age cohorts than the older age cohorts. Milan is the most diverse community in the region with almost 30 percent of the population being non-white.

Milan has seen an overall decrease in population from 1960 to 2010 of over 23 percent. This decline in population has been steady until this last decade where Milan experienced an increase in population of 43 people. This trend is noteworthy and is caused by an increase of non-whites to the community. The population projections show a decrease in the population, but the projection may not be accurately capturing the increase of the non-white community.
