Kim Ukura '08 named editor of the Morris Sun Tribune

Summary: Ukura earned a master of arts in journalism at the University of Wisconsin, Madison.

(August 17, 2011)-Kim Ukura has been named editor of the Morris Sun Tribune.

Ukura graduated from the University of Minnesota, Morris in 2008 with a degree in English with a concentration in journalism. While at Morris, Ukura worked for both The University Register and The Counterweight, as well as with the Center for Small Towns. She also interned with the Sun Tribune for a year, covering the county commissioners and feature stories.

After graduation, Ukura headed to the University of Wisconsin, Madison, for a master of arts in journalism, specializing in community and local reporting while working for The Capital Times, Madison's weekly news magazine. She has most recently worked at a trade magazine for design engineers in the manufacturing sector.

"I am delighted that Kim will return the Morris Sun Tribune as editor. She has passion for community news, a familiarity with Morris and UMM and is an excellent writer," said Sun Tribune publisher Sue Dieter.

Through personal and academic discovery, the University of Minnesota, Morris provides opportunities for students to grow intellectually, engage in community, experience environmental stewardship and celebrate diversity. A renewable and sustainable educational experience, Morris prepares graduates for careers, for advanced degrees, for lifelong learning, for work world flexibility in the future, and for global citizenship.
