UMM presence during AAC&U Conference in Washington, D.C.

Summary: Three administrators from the University of Minnesota, Morris will present during the Association of American Colleges and Universities (AAC&U) Annual Meeting in Washington, D.C., January 23-26.

(January 18, 2008)-Three administrators from the University of Minnesota, Morris will present during the Association of American Colleges and Universities (AAC&U) Annual Meeting in Washington, D.C., January 23-26. Focus of the conference is Intentional Learning, Unscripted Challenges: Knowledge and Imagination for an Interdependent World.

UMM Chancellor Jacqueline Johnson, Lowell Rasmussen, associate vice chancellor for physical plant and master planning, and Sandy Olson-Loy, vice chancellor for student affairs, will talk on the topic, “Back to the Future: Re-inventing a "Green" Learning Environment,” between 1:30-2:30 p.m. on Friday, Jan. 25.

AAC&U is the leading national association concerned with the quality, vitality and public standing of undergraduate liberal education. Its members, which include UMM, are committed to extending the advantage of a liberal education to all students, regardless of their academic specialization or intended career. Founded in 1915 by college presidents, AAC&U now represents the entire spectrum of American colleges and universities—large and small, public and private, two-year and four-year. AAC&U comprises more than 1,100 accredited colleges and universities that collectively educate more than five million students every year.
