"Re-inventing a 'Green' Learning Environment" available online

Summary: Three administrators from the University of Minnesota, Morris gave a presentation on the topic, "Re-inventing a "Green" Learning Environment: 'Scripting' a Sustainable Campus," during the Association of American Colleges and Universities (AAC&U) Annual Meeting in Washington, D.C. The presentation is now online.

(February 4, 2008)-Three administrators from the University of Minnesota, Morris gave a presentation on the topic, "Re-inventing a "Green" Learning Environment: 'Scripting' a Sustainable Campus," during the Association of American Colleges and Universities (AAC&U) Annual Meeting in Washington, D.C., January 23-26. Focus of the conference was Intentional Learning, Unscripted Challenges: Knowledge and Imagination for an Interdependent World.

The presentation by UMM Chancellor Jacqueline Johnson, Lowell Rasmussen, associate vice chancellor for physical plant and master planning, and Sandy Olson-Loy, vice chancellor for student affairs, is now online at AAC&U.

AAC&U is the leading national association concerned with the quality, vitality and public standing of undergraduate liberal education. Its members, which include UMM, are committed to extending the advantage of a liberal education to all students, regardless of their academic specialization or intended career. Founded in 1915 by college presidents, AAC&U now represents the entire spectrum of American colleges and universities—large and small, public and private, two-year and four-year. AAC&U comprises more than 1,100 accredited colleges and universities that collectively educate more than five million students every year.

Through personal and academic discovery, the University of Minnesota, Morris provides opportunities for students to grow intellectually, engage in community, experience environmental stewardship and celebrate diversity. A renewable and sustainable educational experience, Morris prepares graduates for careers, for advanced degrees, for lifelong learning, for work world flexibility in the future, and for global citizenship.
