Michael Moshen afternoon workshop for kids of all ages

Summary:

(September 3, 2003)-Students of all ages who are interested in math, physics and the arts will especially enjoy a workshop to be given by visionary performing artist Michael Moshen at 1 p.m. Friday, Sept. 19, in Edson Auditorium on the campus of the University of Minnesota, Morris. The presentation, aptly titled “Math, Physics and the Arts,” is free and open to the public.

Ranked as one of the world’s leading jugglers and described by New York magazine as “poetry in Moschen,” Moschen will also give an evening performance at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 20, to open this year’s Performing Arts Season at UMM. Moshen’s artistry is sure to captivate the entire family.

For those who wish to attend the evening performance, the Prairie Renaissance Cultural Alliance has partnered with UMM to provide a “Park and Ride” service right to the front door of the UMM Student Center. Call the Morris Transit Service the week of the event, 589-1000, to let them know that you would like to use the service. Park your car in the back row of the Willie’s Super Valu parking lot before 7 p.m. This service is free and is offered for each of the Series performances.

Primary funding for this Series is provided by University of Minnesota, Morris students. The Series is made possible by a grant provided by the Minnesota State Arts Board, through an appropriation by the Minnesota State Legislature. In addition, this activity is sponsored in part by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

For Series tickets and additional information, call the UMM Office of Student Activities, 320-589-6080 or visit the Performing Arts Series web site at www.mrs.umn.edu/stuorgs/CAC/Arts/.
