Register for Creative Study Institute

Summary: Since its first two-week program in 1974, the Henjum Creative Study Institute at UMM has provided a unique variety of arts enrichment opportunities for junior and senior high school gifted and talented students during the summer.

(February 27, 2006)-Since its first two-week program in 1974, the Henjum Creative Study Institute at the University of Minnesota, Morris has provided a unique variety of arts enrichment opportunities for junior and senior high school gifted and talented students during the summer. This year the Institute will be held June 5-16.

Students in grades 6-12 can take one morning class and one afternoon class in a variety of topics: raku pottery, jazz ensemble, painting, radio broadcasting, creative writing, character acting, improvisation, dance, digital storytelling, printmaking, vocal music, or a new topic in “activism, the environment and you.”

Creative Study classes are taught by UMM faculty, area k-12 teachers, Creative Study alumni and other community experts. Outstanding teachers and the facilities at UMM provide an environment where students can create, explore, interact and expand their perspectives. Equally important to the Creative Study experience are many lifelong friendships made during the Institute when students connect with other participants their own age who share similar interests.

The Henjum Creative Study Institute is sponsored by Continuing Education at UMM with the cooperation and support of area schools. Cost for the Institute is $180-$225 (contingent on enrollment discounts for which the participant qualifies), plus a materials fee for select courses. Some schools pay a portion of the tuition and/or provide transportation to UMM. Scholarships are also available based on financial need. A bus runs from Alexandria with stops in Glenwood, Starbuck and Cyrus to UMM for a minimal fee.

Registrations will be accepted through June 1, 2006. Registration materials are available from local school counselors or principals, or by contacting Jacki Anderson, UMM Continuing Education at (320) 589-6456, or call toll-free 1-800-842-0030, or e-mail andersjs@morris.umn.edu
