A DREAM COME TRUE

History was made on Monday, September 26, 1960 when freshmen students at the University of Minnesota, Morris filed into class rooms at 8:30 a.m. Instructors began the giving out of information relevant to their respective classes and young minds became receptive, indicating that they were here for a purpose.

While there was a seriousness in the students as they hurried to be on time to their first class, there was also a note of enthusiasm as they gathered to meet new friends. Each wore a maroon freshman beanie which bore gold lettering "UMM '64'".

Thus, a dream has come true and the University of Minnesota, Morris is a reality, alive with students eager and enthused to establish the precedence and tradition that goes with being "the first".
