MORRIS (1/21/76) -- The Morris University Without Walls program will be the focus of discussion at a general information session Saturday, January 31. The session will be held at 9:30 a.m. on the second floor of the Community Services Building on the University of Minnesota, Morris campus.

The Morris U-W-W program has been designed with west central Minnesotans in mind. By taking advantage of it, it is now possible for those with definite educational goals--but who have run into barriers -- to pursue an alternate route to the bachelor's degree.

These barriers may take the form of distance from a college campus, restrictive hours imposed by employment, family responsibilities or the like.

The U-W-W program at the University of Minnesota, Morris invites inquiries, and persons with questions are urged to attend the information session.

That's Saturday, January 31 on the second floor of the U-M-M Community Services Building.
