MORRIS--Parents of every University of Minnesota, Morris student have been invited to the 3rd Annual Dad's Day program to be held at 3 p.m., Saturday, October 26, on the UMM campus. Reports, a week ago, indicated that many parents were planning to attend the program.

Three UMM faculty members and one student will present brief discussions on various phases of collegiate activity. Also included in the program are a number of musical selections and a pre-game luncheon.

Bruce Rolloff, Director of Physical Education and Athletics, will speak on "The Value of Physical Education and Athletics in a Liberal Arts College." Charles Hanna, Director of Admissions, will discuss the history of UMM.

Frank Nelson, president of the Student Government, will present "A Students View of Activities" and Iver Bogen, Director of Counseling, will talk about "A Student's Personal Maturity."

A pre-game luncheon will begin at 5 p.m. and at 5:45, up to game time at 8 p.m., parents and friends will have an opportunity to visit with their sons and daughters in student residence halls on campus, rooms and apartments off campus and in other UMM campus buildings.

Dad's Day programs have traditionally, been set aside to honor the fathers of football players, but UMM officials felt that this offered an opportunity to honor the fathers of all students. A special half time program will give recognition to the fathers of football players, however.

Free passes were sent to all fathers or guardians of UMM students. It is expected that mothers, too, will attend, as well as friends and relatives. This is the Cougars final home game of the season and also the final conference game.
