9-14-2011

Fairy tale scholar Jack Zipes to speak on "De-Disneyfying the Fairy-Tale Film"

University Relations

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.morris.umn.edu/urel_news

Recommended Citation
http://digitalcommons.morris.umn.edu/urel_news/606

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the External Relations at University of Minnesota Morris Digital Well. It has been accepted for inclusion in University Relations News Archive by an authorized administrator of University of Minnesota Morris Digital Well. For more information, please contact skulann@morris.umn.edu.
Fairy tale scholar Jack Zipes to speak on "De-Disneyfying the Fairy-Tale Film"

Summary: The event, open to the campus and community, will serve as the inaugural Honors Lecture.

(September 14, 2011)-Jack Zipes, University of Minnesota professor emeritus of comparative literature and German, will deliver the inaugural University of Minnesota, Morris Honors Lecture on Wednesday, September 14, 2011, at 4 p.m. in Recital Hall on the Morris campus. His talk, “De-Disneyfying the Fairy-Tale Film,” is free and open to the public.

Zipes extensively publishes and lectures on fairy tales and their functions. His talk at Morris will be based on his newest book, The Enchanted Screen: The Unknown History of Fairy-Tale Films. Zipes says, “Our contemporary concept and image of a fairy tale has been shaped and standardized by Disney so efficiently through the mechanisms of the culture industry that our notions of happiness and utopia are, and continue to be, filtered through a Disney lens….Zipes will show short films and explore the endeavors of various filmmakers to develop fairy-tale films that propose alternatives to the standard Disney fairy-tale film.

“The work of Jack Zipes continues to challenge the ways that we understand fairy-tale narratives as well as the impulses that lead to their retelling,” says Tammy Berberi, director of the Morris Honors Program and associate professor of French. “The Honors Program is proud to welcome Professor Zipes to campus for its inaugural lecture.”

In 1997, Zipes founded a storytelling and creative drama program, Neighborhood Bridges, in collaboration with the Children’s Theatre Company, Minneapolis, that continues to thrive in Twin Cities’ elementary schools. He is editor-in-chief of the Routledge book series Children’s Literature and Culture and co-editor of the Palgrave book series Studies in Contemporary European Culture and History. He is editor of a new series, Oddly Modern Fairy Tales, published by Princeton University Press. He has written numerous articles for journals in the United States, Great Britain, Germany, Canada, Italy, and France, and his awards include the John Simon Guggenheim Fellowship, the National Endowment for the Humanities Fellowship, and the International Brothers Grimm Award.

Morris Honors Program students organized the Zipes lecture with support from the Dean’s Office. The Honors Program provides motivated, high-achieving students a distinctive, academically challenging intellectual experience amplifying and complement the Morris liberal arts education.

Through personal and academic discovery, the University of Minnesota, Morris provides opportunities for students to grow intellectually, engage in community, experience environmental stewardship and celebrate diversity. A renewable and sustainable educational experience, Morris prepares graduates for careers, for advanced degrees, for lifelong learning, for work world flexibility in the future, and for global citizenship. Learn more about Morris at morris.umn.edu or call 888-866-3382.