Siobhan Bremer presents theatre research at Conference for Visual and Performing Arts in Athens, Greece

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.morris.umn.edu/urel_news

Recommended Citation
http://digitalcommons.morris.umn.edu/urel_news/654
Siobhan Bremer presents theatre research at Conference for Visual and Performing Arts in Athens, Greece

Summary: The associate professor of theatre's presentation, “Going Green Globally,” focused on her environmental theatre research.

“I shared my research in regard to my own work and also what other academics are doing in the United States,” says Bremer. “I made great international connections and will further my research to find out what folks in other countries are doing to be more environmentally sensitive.”

ATINER is an independent association of academics. The forum of academics and researchers from all over the world meet in Athens and exchange ideas on research and discuss future developments of their disciplines.

Bremer recently directed the Morris Theatre Discipline’s 2011 children’s show, the premiere of Sophie and the Adventures of Ice Island. Created in collaboration with playwright Forrest Musselman, the innovative, environmentally friendly production will be shown this fall on Pioneer Public Television.

Photo below: Bremer at Epidaurus Theatre in Greece

Through personal and academic discovery, the University of Minnesota, Morris provides opportunities for students to grow intellectually, engage in community, experience environmental stewardship and celebrate diversity. A renewable and sustainable educational experience, Morris prepares graduates for careers, for advanced degrees, for lifelong learning, for work world flexibility in the future, and for global citizenship. Learn more about Morris at morris.umn.edu or call 888-866-3382.