4-13-2011

Asking the Big Questions to explore American Indian religions

University Relations

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.morris.umn.edu/urel_news

Recommended Citation

http://digitalcommons.morris.umn.edu/urel_news/764

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the External Relations at University of Minnesota Morris Digital Well. It has been accepted for inclusion in University Relations News Archive by an authorized administrator of University of Minnesota Morris Digital Well. For more information, please contact skulann@morris.umn.edu.
Asking the Big Questions to explore American Indian religions

Summary: The topic is part of a yearlong series on faith and spirituality.

(April 13, 2011)-The monthly Asking the Big Questions campus/community discussion series is exploring faith and spirituality during the 2010–11 academic year. The next gathering is on Monday, April 25, at 6:30 p.m. in the library’s McGinnis Room on the Morris campus.

The evening will feature an American Indian religions panel and discussion. Guest speaker will be Kent Blansett, teaching specialist in history. Conversation starts at 6:30 pm. Social time featuring snacks and refreshments begins at 6 pm.

Asking the Big Questions is a campus/community discussion group that focuses on significant issues that affect individuals locally, nationally, and globally.

This event is sponsored by Rodney A. Briggs Library and the Philosophy Discipline.

Contact Bremer at 320-589-6173 with questions. Everyone is invited to attend.

Through personal and academic discovery, the University of Minnesota, Morris provides opportunities for students to grow intellectually, engage in community, experience environmental stewardship and celebrate diversity. A renewable and sustainable educational experience, Morris prepares graduates for careers, for advanced degrees, for lifelong learning, for work world flexibility in the future, and for global citizenship. Learn more about Morris at morris.umn.edu or call 888-866-3382.